Dear Chairman Wheeler,

At Discovery World in Milwaukee, we have shared the wonders of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) with children and families thanks in part to our many supporters. Through our 7 year partnership, Time Warner Cable has been a wonderful supporter of our STEM education mission, and we hope that the proposed company New Charter would be a great partner for our organization in the future.

New Charter would combine Charter Communications, Time Warner Cable and Bright House Networks. Time Warner Cable has been a strong partner, and has been the lead sponsor of our annual STEMfest event. The event garnered more than 7,000 visitors participating in STEM exhibits in 2014 and is one of the few times we are able to open our doors to the community for free. Time Warner Cable has been a key contributor to the event with employee volunteers and experts assisting throughout the weekend. We are grateful for the support, and we are hopeful that Time Warner Cable's pending corporate merger could bring even more community involvement to organizations like ours.

We are eager to learn more about the new company's plan to reach out to low-income households. We have offered free admission to our past STEMfest events, and it is always one of our most diverse audiences of the year. We know that too often financial problems inhibit access to technology, and we welcome measures that aim to bring technology to more families and students. Those efforts are part of our mission, and we need more partners to assist us in expanding access and opportunity.

We have had a great partner in Time Warner Cable, and we have high hopes that a new company would build on Time Warner Cable's positive legacy.

Sincerely,

Joel Brennan
